How to use a Binary

- Download the binary executable file in accordance with your system configurations, i.e., platform and arch
- There is a need to download the views, schema, public, and logfiles directories from the project
- Upon downloading, place these directories under the same directory where the binary executable file is located
- Then start the binary, then the application is up and running